To the friends of Temperance and the public generally we now make our appeal in behalf of this paper. The publisher feeling it a matter of importance to the interest of the Temperance cause in the District, as well as the general interest of the cause, and having been, as he conceives, Providentially placed in a situation at this time when he can mingle this interest with that of the business men, and thereby render a double service to the community, and still further open a medium of communication by which our principles may be extended far and wide, at a cheap rate, he has purchased a printing establishment, so as not only to be able to put a daily paper regularly to press, but also a weekly; and still further, be able to do any other printing the public may be pleased to have done; and he assures them that they shall have no cause of complaint. He has made arrangements by which he can devote his time to the interest of the office and the paper; and, having employed Mr. Charles W.
Fenton, who will be always on the spot, to conduct the printing, he has no doubt but that general satisfaction will be given. We shall make arrangements to have the earliest news; also the proceedings of Congress.

We wish all who are indebted for the paper up to this time to pay up, as the affairs of the tri-weekly must be closed. They will perceive that we are about to give them a better paper, double the number, at the same price.

While the "COLUMBIAN FOUNTAIN" will be devoted to the cause of Temperance, its columns will be enriched by original articles on subjects calculated to interest, instruct, and benefit its readers. It is intended so to blend variety, amusement, and instruction, as that the various tastes of its patrons may be (as far as it is practicable) gratified.
Commerce, Literature, and Science, and every other subject of interest, not inconsistent with Temperance and morality, will receive the earnest attention of the publishers.
Nothing of a sectarian, political, or personal character will be admitted.

A CARD.

THE subscriber begs leave to say to members of Congress and others, that he has several good rooms which he will let on accommodating terms, either furnished or unfurnished, located on the South side of Pennsylvania avenue, between 9th and 10th streets, and equidistant between the Capitol and the public offices. I have also two of the best cellars in the city, which I will rent in part or the whole, or receive goods on storage.
This is a good opportunity for butchers or market people.

JUST FROM THE MINT!!!

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

L. S. BECK & SON, would take this method of notifying the citizens of Washington and the adjacent counties of Maryland and Virginia, that they have commenced the house furnishing business in all its various branches, on Pennsylvania avenue, South side, between 9th and 10th streets, where they intend keeping a constant supply of new and second hand goods, and promise to sell on the most reasonable terms. We therefore, solicit a call from our friends and the public generally, as we intend selling at a VERY SLIGHT PROFIT. We would enumerate in part the following: Ivory, Buck and Cocoa handled knives and forks; White, Black and Brown

WILLIAM WOODSWORTH THE STATESMAN.

IN NINE PARTS.

By the author of "The Exile's Grave," "The Retrospect," "Sketches," &c. &c.

PART I.—THE MARRIAGE.

Their nuptial couch may smiling concord dress,
And Venus still the happy union bless!
Wrinkled with age, may mutual love and truth,
To their dim eyes reveal the bloom of youth.

They stood at the altar—both just verg-ing from youth to a more mature age—both equally interesting—he handsome and intelligent, she beautiful and accomplished.
They had long known, admired, and loved each other; but owing to their peculiar and almost distressing situations, they had postponed their marriage until this period.
Charles Clifford, when he first loved the gentle Maria, was a student of law, dependent upon his own merits and exertions for support and patronage; and Maria, was a portionless orphan, dependent upon the cold charity of distant relatives, though once the idol of wealthy and indulgent parents.
But, Charles, now established in the practice of his profession, gaining a moderate salary, and rapidly increasing in popularity, was now so happy as to be able to lead his long betrothed Maria to the altar. And now, there they stood—their countenances beaming with love and happiness, and their hearts filled with hope. They considered their worst cares and sorrows as being brought to an end; and nought was in ex-pectance for them but love and enjoyment.
Their horizon of existence was unclouded.
The sea upon which they had launched was serene; and they

"Fondly deemed each wind and star a friend." Happy pair! may your bright hopes of happiness and your flattering dreams of love, meet with a happy realization; and may your barks glide smoothly on over life's varied waves, until they safely enter their Final Port!

Five years had passed. Charles and Maria were residing upon a beautiful seat, near the banks of the lovely stream which flowed within a short distance of their native place. They had not found marriage, as many have, a cure for love; for now, after a five years' union, they loved as sincerely and devotedly as when first united.
They had as yet met with but few sorrows or misfortunes, and the purity of their lives was as yet untarnished by vice or folly.
Charles had become eminent in his profession, and popular among his acquaintances.
He had twice occupied a seat in his State's Legislature, which he had filled with talent and integrity, and was now, at the period to which we refer, preparing to visit Washington, as a delegate to Congress.

It was a beautiful evening: the cares and labors of the day were being brought to a close: the sun was sinking slowly behind

"The dim distant horizon!" the laborer was returning home from his work, and twilight grey was gently winding her soft mantle around the children of Nature, when the signal was given that the vessel, lying near Clifford's seat, was ready to depart. Charles proceeded to the river side, accompanied by his fond wife.

He bid her a tender farewell, and jumped into the boat, which shoved off from the shore, and commenced her voyage. Maria remained upon the bank, and gazed wistfully upon the bark, which was conveying the idol of her heart away, until the last vestige of it had receded from her sight; and then, with a sigh, she returned to her home, rendered almost desolate by the absence of her Charles, to think of him.
Love in her bosom was not the summer passion of prosperity.

PART III.—THE YOUNG ORATOR.

But if force
Must yield to such inevitable shame, As to offend, myself being offended;
So can I give no reason, nor I will not,
More than a lodged hate. SHAKESPEARE.

Clifford took his seat in Congress. He did not immediately have an opportunity of entering into discussion, or of making himself known as a speaker, or a man of any extraordinary powers. But learning, after he had taken his seat, that in a few days a question of a most exciting nature, and of vital importance to the interest of his country, would be brought before the House for discussion, he determined to make his first attempt at establishing himself in the eyes of the community, as a statesman and a patriot, by showing his zeal, and exerting his powers upon the subject.

The morning arrived when this question was to be discussed, and when Clifford, for the first time, was to occupy the floor of Congress as a speaker. People began to gather early, and soon the House was crowded to overflowing. The hour approached for the commencement of the debate. Charles' opponent, Mr. William Woodsworth, spoke first. He was a man of high order of intellect, and a cultivated mind. Originally, he possessed noble principles, and many virtuous qualities, but being thrown when young among associates of a most licentious and unprincipled stamp, he had become entirely changed—and instead, of virtue and honor, his heart was filled with, and his actions governed by, battered, envy, revenge, and a host of other vicious habits and passions. He was one of those pests to society, and that libel upon humanity, a professed duellist. And he was one who, though stained with the blood of several of his fellow-beings, and guilty of many other crimes which would have blasted forever the prospects of any one in a more humble sphere, was fawned upon by the higher circles of society, and was received and welcomed into what is called fashionable life.

After Woodsworth had concluded, Clifford arose. The eyes of many of the wisest and greatest of this country, as well as of Europe, were fixed upon the young orator.
It was his first effort in the house, and he was almost abashed. With a low and quivering voice, and a trembling frame, he commenced. The crowd moved nearer to catch his words, to which they listened with deep, intense interest. The orator became encouraged; his voice grew more and more elevated; his manner was no longer confused, and his eyes sparkled with feeling. He entered into a cleared elucidation of the question, showed its importance, and the good or injury that would result from its decision. He then reviewed the arguments set forth by Woodsworth, and ably proved that Woodsworth gave untenable assertions for proofs, irreconcilable contradictions, and broken metaphors for sublime illustrations. Abruptness, irrelevancy, and incongruity swept Woodsworth's thoughts from the memory down to the gulf of confusion, and thence, they dashed rapidly through the auditory's minds, and no more left a trace or impression, than the clear water does on the crystal vase out of which it is poured. Clifford's ideas were clothed in elegant diction, and the flowing harmony of his language, over which lofty sentiments shed a lambent and sparkling beauty, was as free as the vernal breeze. Woodsworth rolled his sentences in a rushing torrent, whose sound, like the roar of the pealing thunder, alarmed the heart and grated the ear; but Clifford in that melody—murmuring stream which modulates "the music of thought." True eloquence is a gift which education or study cannot bestow, as like the "holy fire of poetry," its ethereal flame of inspiration must be caught from the lightnings of heaven, and its solar pathway must be only pursued by the soaring eagles of genius.

Leather, Leather, Leather.

THE subscriber, THOS. G. FORD, returns his thanks to his friends and the consumers of Leather in general, for the liberal patronage he has received since he opened his Leather and Cur-rying store, on the corner of 7th and G streets.— He would respectfully inform them that he has now a full assortment of his own finish on hand, and which he can recommend as equal to any in the District, which will be sold on the most reasonable terms.

The stock consists of Sole Leather and Skirting, and very superior Calf Skins, upper and kipps, Harness and Bridle, and Bags' Leather, &c. All his Leather being tanned expressly for the establishment, he feels confident, with his practical knowledge of the business in all its branches, he can give general satisfaction.

fessor of Moral Science.

Rev. H. S. BAGNER, A. M., Professor of Greek and Rhetoric.

Rev. M. JACOBS, A. M., Professor of Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, &c.

Rev. W. M. REYNOLDS, A. M., Professor of Latin, Mental Philosophy, &c.

M. L. STOEYER, A. M., Professor of History and Principal of Preparatory Department.

Rev. C. A. HAY, A. M., Professor of German Language and Literature.

HERMAN HAUPT, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.

WM. HENRY HARRISON, A. B., Assistant Professor of Languages.

DAVID GILBERT, M. D., Lecturer on Anatomy and Physiology.

Rev. J. G. MORRIS, D. D., Lecturer on Zoology.

WM. ALBAUGH, A. M., Tutor and Teacher in Preparatory Department.

H. R. GEIGER, Teacher of Writing.

The course of studies in Pennsylvania College is as extensive and substantial as that of any institution in the country. The Preparatory Department provides for instruction in all the branches of a thorough English business education, in addition to the Elements of the Mathematics and Classical Literature. The College course is arranged in the four classes usual in the institutions of this country.

The government of the students is as energetic as their circumstances seem to require. They attend at least two recitations a day, and the Faculty contemplate increasing them to three, Church and Bible Class on the Sabbath, and are visited in their rooms so frequently as to preclude the danger of any great irregularities. It is believed no institution in the United States has more exemplary young men in connexion with it. They are all required to lodge in the College edifice, special cases excepted.

The annual expenses are—for board, tuition and room rent, during the winter session $61 87 1-2; for the summer session, $41 87 1-2; washing, $10; wood, $3 00. Total expense, $116 75. Boarding can be had in town at $1 25 per week.

There are two vacations in the year, commencing on the third Thursdays of April and September; each of five weeks continuance.

The summer session will commence on Thursday, the 22d of May. The annual commencement takes place on the third Thursday in September.

The Trustees have recently made various arrangements which will increase the efficiency of the institution. They have increased the number of Professors and provided for the most ample instruction of the students.

Professor Baugher and Haupt are prepared to board boys and to exercise a special supervision over their studies and deportment, and Parents who may prefer placing their sons under their care, will be secure in regard to their proper management, under arrangements such as pertain to the family circle.

Guaranty, Bankruptcy, Shipping and Navigation, &c., and whatever else shall tend to develop the resources of the country and the world, and illustrate the various topics bearing upon Commerce and Commercial Literature.

It has been, and will continue to be, the aim of the Editor and Proprietor of the Merchants' Magazine, to avoid everything of a party, political, or sectional bias or bearing, in the conduct of the work—opening its pages to the free and fair discussion of antagonistic doctrines connected with the great interests of Commerce, Agriculture, Manufactures and the Currency.

Complete sets of the Merchants' Magazine, embracing 12 semi-annual volumes, of about 600 large octavo pages each, bringing it down to June, 1844, inclusive, may be obtained at the Publisher's Office, 142 Fulton street, New York, at the subscribing price.

Publishers of newspapers in the United States, by giving this advertisement two or three
